

A version of 'Lines and Squares'

Out walking in a London street I always try to keep my feet within the pavement squares.
I know, you see, that bears are hiding in the lines between ferociously keen,
if I step on a crack, to drag me back to their underground lairs and eat me, stewed with sour berries and pears.

AA Milne (1882-1956)

adapted by Rogan Wolf